Notes:

- Comparing ourselves to our neighborhood schools
- Holding ourselves accountable to the point of comparison
- Cash reserves- responsibility to be good stewards of this
- How this group can be helpful by looking at this data and how we are leveraging those resources
- We have to be very intentional with data review and analysis to be
- Members of the staff need to understand the ways that we communicate the information we have to the boards
- Part of our responsibility as the board is to ensure that as we listen to the data, we are tapping into what's missing. How the data is being interpreted and what are we doing to improve
- This committee should support the larger board in understanding the data
- Comparing ourselves to the neighborhoods in which our schools are located, we should actually look at the schools from which our children are coming from
- The district looks at the challenge index- regression analysis of how our schools do relative to our schools that have similar demographics
- The challenge index looks at poverty, SWD, ELL
